2019 ACSPN CONFERENCE: OPENING CEREMONY

September 4th, 2019

Voices

Although the programme started a bit behind schedule, the activities (speeches) were well organised and instructive. The calibre of resource persons and guests added glamour and further enriched the programme.

Dr. Ugbo G. Obinna - Lecturer, Afe Babalola University

"It was quite an interesting conference. Both the lectures and the responses of participants have further described the need for continuous training and education by scholars and practitioners to stay on the job and maintain relevance."

Abatan Olatunde Alabi - C.E.O, Newdawnngr

"Very well coordinated and delivered."

Dr. Chukwu N. Joseph - Lecturer, Alex Ekwueme Federal University Ndufu-Alike Ebonyi State

"Quite educational and all encompassing."

Adedoyin Olubunmi – Lecturer, LASPOTTECH

"A great outing for ACSPN as it connected with the professional greats in journalism, broadcasting and communicators. Please keep it up especially the project being initiated by ACSPN president on the documentary of pioneers."

Chief Dayo Dayile - Elizade University

"Enlightening and resourceful. The remarks were inspiring and rekindled a passion for advocacy journalism."

Joshua Olufemi - PTCTI Programme Director

“It was loaded. I commend the organisers for the calibre of people invited and all messages delivered.”

Mrs. Olorunyomi Omolara - YABATECH

“Well planned, good orderliness, quiet table well and appropriately filled, good and scholarly opening address, well-articulated good will messages. The opening ceremony was well and massively attended.”

Dr. Semiu Bello - Kwara State University, Malete

“The high table is rich with Nigerian content. I believe the high table of ACSPN conference should have a mix of Nigeria and foreign content. The organisation was just very perfect.”

Dr Majority Oji – Senior Lecturer, DELSU

“Satisfactory.”

Omooba Kayode Akin-Samuel - Asst Sect Fed. Chapter, NUJ Ogun Council

“It was well organised and full of professional intellectuals.”

Cosmas Olalekan Oni - Vice President, NUJ National

“Beautiful, Enlightening, Inspiring. It was a good start to an important conference.”

Olalekan Ajia – Farmer, LEKRIS Farm

“Fully packaged and educative.”

John Adeoluwa Ogunrinde - Alumnus/Professional, Crescent University

“Good enough to bridge the gap between the town and the gown. There are more academics though.”

Lekan Yinusa - Manager News and Current affairs, Sweet FM 107.1

“Quite interesting and informative and the speech by Oba Ogunleye was food for thought.”

Popoola Maureen(Mrs) – Lecturer, Nigeria Institute of Journalism

"It was an awesome experience and thought provoking session. It was also eye opening on some salient issues concerning national interest."

Rahila Jibrin – Lecturer, University of Maiduguri

"It was a very interesting and eye opening session. It gave a comprehensive and historical overview of the relationship between state, media and public in a critical content. The address by His Royal Highness is educative and empowers me on how to improve my news writing and reporting class."

Abdulmutallib A. Abubakar – Lecturer, University of Maiduguri

"Very educative and impressive"

Kayode Taiwo - NUJ Chairman

"It's a commendable thing ACSPN is doing. More grease to their elbow."

Uchechi Ugwuzor - Broadcast Media Reporter

"Well organised and managed. I was impressed with the turnout and dignitaries that were invited. Topic discussed very relevant."

Bolanle Akeredolu-Ale - Professor, Communication and General Studies, FUNAAB

"It's Inspiring."

Simon Fakeye - The Concise Mail Editor

"Very outstanding and interesting."

Helen A. Bodunde – Professor, Communication and General Studies, FUNAAB

"Great idea, I hope it will continue"

Taiwo O. Fabayo - Media Journalist

"It was very interactive and mind-blowing."

Oguntoyinbo Seun Abayomi – Lecturer, Adekunle Ajasin University Akungba

"The opening ceremony was well delivered, anchored with very eloquent resource persons."

Abdul M.O Wahab - Voice of Nigeria Producer

“The Opening ceremony was fantastic. I learnt so much from the well packaged addresses presented by our fathers and other presenters. I am happy I witnessed it.”

Dr. Ifeyinwa Nsude – Lecturer, Ebonyi State University, Abakaliki

“Highly enriching. It offered an opportunity to listen to very rich presentations from the keynote speakers and other experienced speakers/professionals.”

Ade Inasa-Thomas – Lecturer, Lagos State Polytechnic Ikorodu

“Excellent opening session, very thought provoking issues have been raised indeed the future is here.”

Adebayo Fayoyin - UNFPA South Africa

“Great gathering. It was a great time learning from the very fountain of journalism practice through the doyen of the profession.”

Agunbiade Oluwole - PhD candidate, Babcock University

“Quite impressive.”

Dr. Ibe Ben Onoja - Nnamadi Azikwe University

“Fine Outing.”

Lanre Ogundipe - Professional/Teacher President, Leads Communications Ltd

“Opening ceremony was thought provoking and the calibre of high table members and their thought patterns was encouraging. However, time management should be improved.”

Ogunwemimo Oluwafisayo O – Lecturer, Babcock University

“Impressive but too long.”

Stella Jibrin - Director, Nigeria Press Council

“It has been interesting thus far as important topics were touched on ...”

Oloyede Femi Abiola - Redeemers’ University

Gana Hope - Assistant Lecturer Ibrahim Badamosi Babangida University, Lapai

“Good Work in progress.”

Dr. Qasim Akinreti – Chairman, Nigeria Union of Journalist

“Inspiring and encouraging.”

Solanke Abdulwarees - Ag Deputy Director, Strategic Planning and Corporate Development Voice of Nigeria

“The opening ceremony was splendid. The keynote speech enumerated the need for the government (the marketer) to propagate national interest and ensure that the masses (the consumers) are carried along in issues of great concern to them. The chairman's remark was interesting and though provoking. The conference generally was well organised and rich academically.”

Dr. Onyinyechi N. Nwaolikpe - Lecturer, Caleb University

“Opening ceremony well implemented, but was too packed with activities. I wish to suggest that activities should be cut down to very important ones for effective time management.”

Dr. Paul Bebenimibo - DELSU Lecturer

“It gives an insight to the main session and prospect of ACSPN and the development of Nigeria and Africa at large.”

Ololade Nurein – OAP, Sweet 107.1FM
